AAIS Industry Safety Week

With growing interest and emphasis on safety, the Association of Aerospace Industries (Singapore) organised its first AAIS Industry Safety Week from 14 to 18 November 2022.

The inaugural AAIS Industry Safety Week saw over 70 organisations from aerospace, aviation and other industries participating in various activities, including seminars, webinars, and site visits for cross-learning of best practices.

Aviation Safety: In conversation with CAAS and Aerospace Leaders

To kick off Safety Week, AAIS held a hybrid seminar on 14 November to discuss aviation safety in aerospace MRO and manufacturing. The event featured industry leaders including Mr Oliver Chamberlain, Manufacturing Executive, Rolls-Royce Singapore, and Mr Mark Loh, General Manager, Bell Textron Asia, as well as Mr Leong Chin Sing, Senior Manager (Maintenance Organisation), Civil Aviation Authority of Singapore (CAAS).

Visit to SIAEC Aviation and Workplace Safety Promotion Centres

AAIS Management Committee members and their safety officers were invited to visit the SIA Engineering Company (SIAEC) Aviation Safety Promotion Centre and Workplace Safety Promotion Centre on 15 November. Established by SIAEC to augment safety training programmes for its staff with the aim of reinforcing workplace safety culture and mindset, the centres included immersive media, informational displays and interactive activities.

Advancing WSH: New Code of Practice + Data-Driven Risk-Based Approach

A webinar on 17 November provided important updates on workplace safety and health (WSH) practices. The keynote speaker was Mr Christopher Koh, General Manager of the Singapore WSH Council who provided a briefing on a new code of practice (COP) which details the duties of company CEOs and directors on WSH. This was followed by a rich presentation on 'A Data-Driven Risk-Based Approach to WSH Management' by Mr Lim Sui Soon, Exco member of the Singapore Institution of Safety Officers (SISO).

Launch of AAIS Safety Microsite

To promote knowledge/resource sharing and exchange between members of the industry ecosystem, AAIS launched a curated microsite (<https://aais.org.sg/safety>). The AAIS Safety Microsite serves as a repository of safety resources and features messages by Mr Tay Tiang Guan, 1 Deputy Director-General at CAAS and Mr Wong Yu Jeen, AAIS President, as well as safety-related collaterals. We welcome all to utilise the resources and look forward to further contributions and materials from industry members.

Recent Activities

AAIS Annual Futsal Tournament 2022

Even before 'World Cup fever' grips football fans, AAIS saw dramatic and nail-biting moments on the pitch at our very own AAIS Annual Futsal Tournament 2022. Held on Saturday, 19 November at the FutsalArena@Yishun, the event saw teams from organisations across the aerospace industries vying for the Championship trophy and bragging rights as the top Futsal team in the sector.

After a two-year pause on the popular tournament, participants were ready and raring to go, enlivened by strong support from colleagues and family members. The tournament saw spirited competition between teams from the very first whistle. Ultimately, Singapore Aero Engine Services Private Limited (SAESL) emerged as champions, with Rolls-Royce Singapore and Advance Remanufacturing and Technology Centre as runners-up. Fourth place went to Pratt & Whitney Component Solutions. Our heartiest congratulations to all players, especially Mohammed Imran bin Ismail, the 2022 Tournament's Most Valuable Player!

Singapore Pavilion at MRO Europe 2022

AAIS coordinated the Singapore Pavilion at MRO Europe 2022, held from 18 to 20 October in London, UK. Seven Singapore-based companies joined us to pursue opportunities, supported by Enterprise Singapore. Touted as the largest event for the aviation aftermarket in the region, the MRO Europe exhibition and conference welcomed 9,000 attendees from 86 countries. The Singapore Pavilion made an excellent impression on the trade visitors and organisers, with exhibiting companies taking the opportunity to showcase their brands, products and services and establish/deepen connections in the region.
